Optimist Club Planning Event New In J'town

The Jeffersontown Optimist Club is planning a series of special events in observance of South Appreciation Week sponsored by Optimist International. Jack Quick, president of the local club, said Thursday.

Although complete plans have not been made, Quick said that some features are being arranged that are unique in Jeffersontown. The period begins Monday, May 21, and will be climaxed with special events Sunday, May 27.

One feature will be that selected young people will serve as "city officials" for a day, in many forms, councilmen, police judge and so on down the line.

Also a speakers bureau will be set up and organizations desiring to learn of the Optimists' endeavors in boys' work will be able to get the information first hand. Quick attended a District District meeting at Cincinnati last Sunday and received some suggested material for use in connection with the observance.

Mayor John T. Orlando is expected to issue a proclamation officially setting the Jeffersontown observance in motion following a similar move by Gov. A. B. Chandler.

Kennedy Pains Bright Picture For City, County Real Estate

The year 1955 was the most active year on record for real estate in the Louisville and Jefferson County area. The question in realtor's and the public mind January 1, 1956 was WHAT ABOUT 1956?

Such was an excerpt of a report of John E. Kennedy, resident of Jeffersontown, who is president of the Louisville Real Estate Board. His statement, in part, follows:

"As we check the record of actual sales thru the PICTURE MULTIPLE LISTING SYSTEM OF THE LOUISVILLE REAL ESTATE BOARD, 125 per cent more sales were sold this year than in 1954. Also the dollar value of units sold was 112 1/2 more than in 1954. This is the best record since 1930, and we must remember that financing was less restrictive in January and February of 1955 than in 1956.

"These figures do not necessarily answer the question WHAT ABOUT 1956, but with mortgage money both for new construction and existing structures showing every indication of becoming more plentiful, with the F.H.A. and V.A. agencies lessening their restrictions on financing, I sincerely believe 1956 will be better than 1955.

"It takes more than materials, labor, etc., to build homes and stores; it takes people to buy them. Our industrial expansion must keep pace. Large plants such as General Electric and Ford do not come to an area every day. However expansion of existing industry and the continued desirability of the Louisville area as a source of ample electric power, excellent labor resources plentiful, with the F.H.A. and V.A. agencies lessening their restrictions on financing, I sincerely believe 1956 will be better than 1955.

"A population increase of some 17,000 last year and an estimated increase of 18,000 this year gives a good indication of the demands for housing in the years ahead.

"As the suburban areas grow, the problem of sanitary sewers looms larger and larger for residential, commercial, and industrial areas. The Louisville Sewerage Commission is the community's number one problem. The Fiscal Court has very wisely secured legislation to let the drainage problem, and I am positive County Judge Van Arman will put it into effect immediately.

"The Waterson Expressway and allied streets and roads which help solve the traffic problems tremendously. It is my opinion the Waterson Expressway will be a great shopping center and small industry this year, and not too many years hence could form the hub of our Great Metropolitan area.

"The development of the State Fairground which is rapidly taking shape; certainly offers a year round program of sports and industry and rural living will be most beneficial to not only this area, but the state at large."

Beginning Monday, Kentucky and Indiana grocers will prepare trim, display, price and care for fresh fruits and vegetables in a classroom "set up" in the Louisville Promenade Terminal at Bishop and Jennings Lanes between Newburg and Poplar Level Roads.

Site Of Disposal Plant Remains In Litigation

Renewed efforts of the East Jeffersontown Improvement Association and others to halt construction of a new sewage disposal plant on Chenoweth Run at Rehl and Old Taylorsville Roads "appear to be a delaying action," Jeffersontown's City Attorney Gene Snyder said Thursday.

"Construction plans are going ahead unless we are halted by a court order," Snyder said. He added that the courts already have passed on questions involved.

The Association and seven others filed a petition in Circuit Court last Friday seeking an injunction to halt construction of the plant. The seven own property near the 4.24-acre site.

They further seek to restrain the City-County Planning and Zoning Commission and Fiscal Court from approving the project until the two governmental agencies receive additional facts on size of the operation, location and operation methods.

Previously, the association lost an appeal from a Fiscal Court approval of the site that had been recommended by the City-County Planning and Zoning Commission. The Court of Appeals ruled that the court's ruling was unappealable.

The plaintiffs, who do not object to construction of a disposal plant, want it at another place. They claim that the plant at the proposed site would impair values of their property.

The board advises the commissioner of agriculture and is responsible for the state's agricultural, horticultural, forestry and industrial interests of the state.

The secretary of agriculture and director of the University of Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station are ex-officio members. The other seven members are appointed by the governor of the appellate districts. One of the districts comprises Jefferson County.

The council will coordinate and support all existing agencies operated for the benefit of handicapped persons in Kentucky; to strengthen their cooperation; and to give assistance in carrying out the objects and aims of individual agencies working in this field of activities.

Other 1956 deaths were one from a fall and three domestic. The figures were released by the Louisville Safety Council.

Lord's Supper

Lesson for March 18, 1956

CHRISTIANS are divided about many things; but they are all one in the Lord's Supper. "What?" some one will ask. "Don't some churches refuse to let members of any churches but their own partake of the Communion with them? Don't different churches have different explanations of what this sacrament means? Don't various denominations observe it in various ways? How can you say all Dr. Foreman Christians are united in the Lord's Supper?"

We Think of Him

It is true, there are seemingly endless variations in the way the Lord's Supper is observed. Even the same is not always the same, some preferring to call it the Eucharist, others Holy Communion. There are also theologians' debates about it. But plain Christians do unite here even when they may not be quite aware of it. For there are three facts that are always true of this sacred observance, however or wherever it is held. First of all, in the Lord's Supper we think of Christ. It is possible to go even to a Christian church and not hear very much about Jesus Christ on that particular day. (Jesus' own teaching was not always about himself.) But it is not possible to go into a church where the Lord's Supper is being taken by the people, without being reminded directly of Christ. Every Christian has heard the words many times—"my body," "my blood," "in remembrance of me." Here are bread and wine, but every worshipper knows that these are not simple ordinary refreshment. They are symbols and signs of Christ, his actual suffering and death on the cross. Whatever the church may be, its members always think of Christ when they take Communion.

We Find Him

There is something more than thinking about Jesus and his sacrifice, when we take Communion. In this sacrament we find Him. It is quite true, different churches have different official explanations about how we find Christ here. But from "High Church" to "Low," in "Liberal" and "Conservative," in Catholic and Protestant congregations alike, if you could ask the people as they come out of doors again, "What did that service mean to you?" It might be that some would hardly know what to say, for it is always possible to go through the motions without really thinking what one is doing. But those who had entered wholeheartedly into the service, who had come "in love and charity," and in faith, would all tell you about the same thing: "Christ came very near to me." If Christ seems just as far away after the Lord's Supper as before, then there has been something wrong about us. That is why the Roman Catholic church will not admit any one to communion if he has not been to Confession first. That is why in many Protestant churches the people are warned to abstain from Communion if they harbor malice or ugly feeling toward their neighbors.

We Share Him

If it is true that in the Lord's Supper we find the Lord himself, it should be true—and happily it is so—that afterwards life should go on at a higher level than before. The Lord's Supper is less like a doorway leading from one room to another just like it, than it is like a gateway across a boundary from one country to another. Christ comes to us in the Sacrament, but not as a fleeting guest. If we are serious as we take the bread and wine and think about all this in the quiet of prayer, we will so enter into the spirit of Christ himself that we shall rededicate ourselves in his service. It is a kind of parody on Christian ideas to think of Christ's sacrifice as alone and by itself. His cross must be followed by other crosses. His outpoured life must be shared by others who are willing to pour their lives out in turn. And it is this, again, which unites all the Christians who in their many varied fashions have taken this Lord's Supper with devoted hearts. For there is a family resemblance among all real Christians, whatever their church-label may be. And the resemblance goes back to the same Christ, who has shared himself with every Christian everywhere and always who has taken this Bread and Cup.

SEEK YE FIRST THE KINGDOM

As We Forgive

A fine specimen of young manhood... maybe my neighbor or maybe yours. He is not a bad boy, just one without training. His parents don't like the church and actually boast of never attending. What a tragedy. How unfair to the children of such homes... to put "Other Gods first." This lad needs love, direction, guidance. He needs forgiveness, for only "as we forgive can we be forgiven." Police officers, "Big Brothers" and good church people help but it also requires being acquainted with God. Have you asked the court to parole a boy to you instead of allowing him to go to jail? Maybe he needs just one more chance. The manifold mercies of Heaven are available, if a man, woman or child will turn in good purpose to Him. The church on the corner can help any boy, or girl, or man, or woman. Won't you see for yourself?

You in The Church... The Church in You
Form a congregation for good. Every man, woman and child needs the influence of the church. In a faithful service. Attend every service.

THE GRAPE VINE

After having spent endless time on the telephone trying to dig up a few tidbits of news, I have come to the conclusion that everyone must have hibernated last week. Because no one seems to have done much of anything, I will give you the few items that I was able to dig up—and just hope that next week the hibernation period will have ended, and that there will be a heap of news.

Even my number one assistant Scooper, Mrs. Ferd Graves, who is usually good for several items, couldn't help out much this week because she's been battling with that deadly enemy of the housewife—housecleaning.

TEEN TIMES

By Emily Oehle

Fold up the basketball trunks, deflate the basketballs, all the teams have finished the season. Time now for the crack of the hardwood ball against the hickory.

Schools have an air of "almost the end." Talk of term papers and exams is mingling with whispers of proms and parties. Who's going with her? Are you going still? Will your mother stand still for a new dress? We are going to rent tuxes. Who reminds us of another boy who wore his tux for the first time and allowed his mother to talk him into wearing a "bolded" shirt. He reported that he was the only one at the dance who looked like something out of an old "Howdy Dood" movie.

Take a folder of matches, pull three of them out and tuck the flap under them. Ask your friends to move their fingers on the table as you light the matches. When the matches are burning, ask the kids if they think they are Liberace. Don't blame us, we had it pulled on us the other day.

A teenage club in Texas sponsors reversible shoes. They are made from soft leather and can be worn on either foot or on either side.

Minnesota school kids use note book binders of the same colors to show they are going steady. Some of the boys are reported to be using several colors. We thought girls were supposed to be fickle.

What ever happened to "May-belline?" What EVER happened, was for the best, we hope.

Luck to you all on the term papers. Condescend to the poor teachers who have to wade through the reams of papers.

More next week!

FEEDER'S NOTEBOOK

By Emmett Mitchen

EARLY PIG GAINS ARE DOUBLY PROFITABLE

Research has shown that a pig's weaning has a definite relationship to the time it takes to get him to market as a 200 to 225 pound pig. This fact has encouraged agricultural colleges and feed manufacturers to step up their research on the nutrition of baby pigs.

On nine weeks weaning, if the pig weighs only 25 to 30 pounds when he leaves the sow, it is pretty certain that he won't reach market weight until he is about 6½ months old, even on a good feeding program.

If the pig weighs 30 to 40 pounds at weaning, he should be ready for market at six months, and if his weaning is 40 to 50 pounds, there is a good chance that he'll be in the slaughterhouse at 5½ months. Nowadays, some good hog raisers are weaning 50 to 60 pound pigs, and are getting them to market at five months of age. From this it would appear that every ten pounds of extra pig weight at weaning time chops off about 15 days of the time required to get the hog to market. All hog farmers know that the early gains are the cheapest to put on a hog. Thus it becomes doubly clear why good nutrition for baby pigs is so important.

Research has resulted in a highly fortified baby pig formula that many pigs will begin to eat off about seven days. It is creep feed for the first few weeks for fast gains. Then the balanced starting ration is creep feed clear up to weaning time.

Research in baby pig nutrition is making it possible for hog raisers to cash in on heavy weaning weights.

As early as the Civil War, Clara Barton — founder and first president of the American Red Cross — was working to ease the suffering of sick and wounded at the front.

MORE THAN 11,000 FLOCKS LAST YEAR

How would you like to start a batch of chicks and raise 97 out of every 100 started? Last year Purina feeders did that with over 2 million chicks in more than 11,000 flocks. Hundreds of these folks didn't even lose the extras. Actual profit figures are on file in the Purina offices at St. Louis.

What made the difference? It was quality chicks, Micro-Mixing, farm testing, laboratory research sanitation aids which make the Purina Program and good farm management.

Even with this record Purina has an improved Super Chick Starter for 1958. Tests show it can make 54% faster growth than last year's Starters with super economy and safety. Give your chicks the advantage of this quality. Even costs less than last year. Available with new co-cidiat, if desired.

I'm so glad there was sufficient money to get the water run on through View. Folks don't forget the paper drive that is being sponsored by the Park Creek Grade School children and save all your papers and magazines. Some of them may be wanting them and it will help out a lot.

Minutes to get the minstrel that will be held at Bates School the last of March for two nights. Ask for buy tickets and go. Help this school raise their funds. I have a lot of friends and loved ones up there is why I am putting in a word for them.

In aiding servicemen and dependents last year, Red Cross in Louisville received or sent 14 emergency telegrams, letters, or affidavits. There were a total of 3,814 home or office interviews.

Porch and Window Boxes Beautify Modern Homes

There is no denying it, a modern functional type house is rather a "plain Jane" to look at from the street, compared with the attractively symmetrical and ornamental facade of traditional design.

It may never have the dignity of a pillared southern mansion, but its informal air and spreading lines can be made home-like and inviting by growing flowers in window boxes and plantings such as the architect often provide.

If your architect forgot this detail, it is a simple do-yourself job to make them and fill them with floral color during the summer, and evergreen boughs in winter.

For a standard single window, a box 1½ feet long, 8 inches deep and 10 inches wide is a good size. But measure your windows and make boxes to fit. Even long porch planters need not be deeper or wider for good results.

Think of the box as a decoration of the house; make it of a material and color to match the house color or trim.

Roll soil, or the type of material for potting soil, to match the window box. Because there is so little of it to feed the flowers, it should be well fertilized. A teaspoonful of balanced plant food for each square foot of soil should be used.

For most annual flowers, at least six hours of sun is necessary and this requires a sunny exposure. The best subjects are those of dwarf or trailing habit, the latter drooping over the front of the box.

Examples of the balcony type are geraniums, as the tall nasturtiums, the great morning glories, sweet peas, marigolds, ageratum, and pansies.

Small, dwarf burning shrubs, such as the

BUY NOTES ON FOOD

From Extension Service, Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics

Nature gives you 300 days of sunshine when you buy an orange, for that's the time required to produce these golden fruits.

We are in the peak of orange season right now, even though we have had occasional frosts. Oranges in our markets on a year round basis. The two most plentiful varieties are the California Navel and the Valencia from Florida.

When you want to have the best appearance in sliced or sectioned oranges choose the Navel type. It is seedless and meaty. Navel oranges have deep orange color inside and out and very thick skins, which make them easy to peel.

In contrast to Navels, Valencia oranges are comparatively thin skinned. This type of orange has a very high juice and sugar content, and may have a few small seeds.

The eating qualities and flavors of these two types of oranges are such that there is a place for both of them on your market list. Use Navels for desserts and eating out-of-hand; the Valencias for juice.

Nutritionists now tell us that there are plus advantages in eating whole oranges as well as drinking orange juice. The cellular structure and the white outer covering of the meat contain vitamin-like substances that aid in reducing the course of the common cold and assist in warding off such infections.

The vitamins themselves are plus values in foods — choose them because we can't see them, yet essential. Citrus fruits, in fresh, frozen or canned forms, are rich in Vitamin C. Our bodies do not store this vitamin, so we need it every day.

What does Vitamin C do for us? It helps to increase resistance to disease and infection, heals wounds, and prevents fatigue. It serves other functions too, in that it helps preserve the normal healthy structure of the gums and teeth and bones.

There was an idea associated with orange juice that it must be freshly squeezed to have full vitamin C value. Research at the U.S. Citrus Products Station at Winter Haven, Florida (one of the laboratories of the Bureau of Agricultural and Industrial Chemistry of the U.S. Department of Agriculture) reported on the results of storage of juice under varying fruit conditions periods of time, covered and uncovered. (This report was published in 1945)

This investigation indicated that the length of time freshly extracted orange juice may be allowed to stand before serving is limited by loss of the best flavor and not by Vitamin C losses. Vitamin C content remained high (98% retained) both in the covered and uncovered juice stored for one week at room temperature or in a cold room.

Put this information to work for you as a time saver in getting breakfast. Squeeze the juice at night before and have it ready and waiting for the first corners. Start the day with sunshine on your table.

The Cedars of Lebanon

of economics and politics, as applied to our dealings with foreign lands, is described by George Washington in stating: "The great rule of conduct for us, in regard to foreign nations, is to extend our commercial relations, to have with them as little political connection as possible."

By contrast, the enemies, as well as most of the friends of this Country, are highly centralized states. The close union of politics and economics at home, reflects itself as politico-economic imperialism abroad. This is a politically directed unit. The Nationalistic element of the State, directed into all our dealings, and operating as governmental rivalry for materials and markets, inevitably leads to war.

Little Patience

The enemies and friends of the United States have little patience with the functional decentralism that distinguishes this Country from theirs. Behind this lack of sympathy lies the fact that centralism cannot succeed where other countries remain decentralized. The bungling political imperialism of socialism is not for private enterprise. Socialism can only be successful, as Lenin clearly saw, when our country is also reduced to the socialistic levels.

Consequently, friends and enemies alike, look forward to the time when a centralizing and leveling process can be brought about in the United States. This Country must be progressively centralized and politicalized like the influence of socialism, opinion, are convinced that this would be good for the world. This process is to be accomplished through the agency of world-centralism, the United Nations.

Foundations Laid

Yet, peace can never come to the world through the action of imperialism, whether inside or outside a collective organization. When one war is over, the same politico-economic forces operate once more to lay the foundation for the next America's dis-service to the world lies in not showing that peace can only come when culture and business are free from the nationalistic influence of the State. In the face of such freedom, politico-economic imperialism will be seen by the world in its true light.

The American answer to the situation that is gradually destroying Western Civilization, needs reflection in current American policy. This involves the breaking of tradition and foreign countries, with no political help, asked or given. Such an attitude on our part would be a first step toward regaining the confidence and friendship of peoples.

THE DAMASCUS GATE: This is one of eight means of access to the Arab city of Jerusalem and its Holy Place in the Kingdom of Jordan, one of the Bible Lands. Within these ancient, hallowed walls are the church of the Holy Sepulchre, the most sacred shrine in Christendom; the Via Dolorosa or Way of the Cross, along which Jesus had to have walked to Calvary; and the Dome of the Rock, one of the principal shrines of Islam. Outside the walls in the modern section of the city are the Garden of Gethsemane, where Christ passed the night of agony before His Crucifixion, the Mount of Olives, and the Garden Tomb.
